“ I just found this out. Alan just stopped messaging me , which was unusual, we've always stayed in contact over the years , all though I've moved away. I met Alan in a homeless shelter , I think it was around 2011. It was a lousy place , a scary place and certainly a sad place. Alan's big smile jumped out the bleakness and gave me comfort during a hard time. We were instant friends. I had a job interview but I didn't have any clothes that were appropriate. Alan gave me a pair of slacks that were twice my size, but they were nice and clean. The next morning I put em on , along with my cowboy boots. I had just came from Nebraska. I got the job and that event kicked off one of the oddest , but certainly one of the best friendships I have ever had. I am so glad that he was so loved by so many and he was able to return home where he belonged. I will miss Alan tremendously.
