I knew Christopher brother Thompson's since 1969 when we both attended to Staten Island community college in New York.

Over the subsequent year she was there for me in good times and bad times. He wasn't perfect by no means but because we shared so much about our love for Brooklyn and when he moved to California in 1973 he asked me if I would be interested in coming out to visit him. He paid one-way ticket for me to come and he picked me up from San Francisco airport. And from there, our journey as friends continued on we live together in Berkeley in one room he helped me move from Oakland to his building and in Oakland and another part of Oakland. Then over the years you would come and see me when I worked at United healthcare workers in downtown Oakland I've known him for so many years and so many things about him. But our relationship and friendship fell apart in 2018 when I returned to the bay area I only saw him once. And even though he only lives a block and a half away from me currently he was always on my mind and I miss him dearly, knowing that he's no longer with us

This is a reminder all of us, not to lose track of our friends.

By the way, I forgot to mention that he had told me that California was the best place for both of us. I have lived here since 1972. He was definitely right about that. 🌸👑
