

Lucille Nana Campbell

November 29, 1934 - February 7, 2014

Lucille was born in Collinston, LA, on November 29, 1934; to the late Richard and Mary Revels. The family later moved to Oakland, CA; where Lucille continued her education in the Oakland Public School District. She graduated from McClymonds High School.

She later met and married Floyd Campbell. They moved to San Diego, CA and lived there for a short period of time. Lucille was blessed with three children; a son Louis, and two daughters, Evelyn aka Punchie and Amelia aka Caddy.

She received her Certificate of Completion from the Berkeley Skills Center; where she studied business administration and office machines. She enjoyed meeting people so she tried her hand at selling Avon, Tupperware, and Lingerie. She preferred selling Avon the most. She then found her passion in volunteering at the elementary schools for her children; where she became a Teacher's Aid.

Lucille was actively instrumental in registering people to vote, and always worked the polls during every election.

Lucille was lovingly called "PeeWee" or "WeeWee." After her first grandchild was born, she was fondly known as "Nana." All of her children, grandchildren and their friends called her that. Nana loved working with her hands. She had a green thumb when it came to her plants. Her living room looked like a greenhouse. She also enjoyed sewing and refurbishing furniture.

Nana Loved playing pokeno with her friends (“The Biddies of the 60’s”). They would play this game into the wee hours of the morning.

Nana was a small package, but very feisty. She was quiet most of the time, but when she spoke, she was heard loud and clear. Those whom came in contact with her, loved her company and humor.

When she was ready to leave, she would always say her famous words, “Let’s bounce up out of here.” That would tickle those around her; but she was really ready to go at that moment.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Floyd Campbell, mother and father, Richard and Mary Revels, sister, Mable Self; and grand daughter Angel Gordon.
