“ Tachibana-san

When I knew that you and your wife are from the same home town from me, I was not only surprised but also I was so happy to find someone who I can talk in dialect. In addition I found your wife and I went to the same school in that small town. I still remember you and your wife always stick together and showed up where I am working and I think there a lot of people who would miss your smile now.

RIP, Masako
